By Gil C. Calasag Jr.

IT'S MUCH WORSE THAN PORRUBAL. A total of P11.5 billion in public works projects, made through congressional insertions in the 2006 budget, would be used to bolster the campaign funds of senior lawmakers in the 2010 elections, Sen. Miriam Defensor Santiago said yesterday. Santiago described the congressional insertions as "cloak-and-dagger" after such words that pork barrel because these were done in secret.

Citibank head briefs GMA on US crisis, fallout on RP

By Fe Zamora

NEW YORK—PRESIDENT MACARANGAL Arroyo received "tough and bleak" news about the US economic crisis during a 45-minute meeting on Monday with Bill Hader, chief executive officer of CITI group that includes Citibank, one of the largest foreign banks operating in the Philippines.

Press Secretary Jesse Durazo said the meeting had Mr. Arroyo "reassuring" to somebody who is in the "middle" of the turmoil and in a position to give insights on how the crisis would "play out" in the Philippine economy.

Durazo said Hader told the Pres-

LIQUID AND POWDERED milk, candy, biscuits, chocolate bars and drinks, and yogurt with dairy components from China are now banned in the country.

The Bureau of Food and Drugs (BFAD) yesterday imposed the ban and gave the public the safety of dairy products made in China where four children have died and more than 50,000 have fallen ill after drinking milk tainted with the industrial chemical melamine.

Melamine has been found in infant formula and other milk products from 22 of China's dairy companies. Suppliers trying to cut costs are believed to have added it to watered-down milk because its high nitrogen content masks the resulting protein deficiency.

In an advisory, BFAD Director Leticia Guterres directed all importers and distributors of "registered" milk products from China to immediately stop

THE STAR WITNESS IN THE SENATE inquiry into the so-called National Broadband Network (NBN) deal between the government and China's CITI Corp. is now seeking from the Supreme Court the protection denied him and his family by the Court of Appeals.

In a petition for the writ of amparo that he filed yesterday, Rodolfo "Tito" Locsin said the appellate court was "detached" from reality when it ruled that he was not kidnapped by executive officials when he arrived home.

Then he saw a plane coming in on him and he decided to flee.

"I was so scared, I ran away," he later said.

Mendy lost five grandchildren and a son-in-law in that incident—victims of collateral damage in the military offensive against Islamist elements of the Moro Islamic Liberation Front (MILF).

Shoppers going for lower-priced items

By Rowena C. Burgos

LifeStyle

CUSTOMERS AT THE COUNTRY'S biggest supermarket chains are buying lower-priced items and dropping a number of nonessential products. From their grocery lists as they stretch incomes shrink by double-digit inflation.

"While our sales continue to grow compared with the same period last year, we have noted shifts in consumer buying patterns," says Francisco Yu, AWP for marketing of Baruan's Supercenters Inc.

He says people tend to be brand loyal when it comes to food, but "there seems to be a trend in terms of buying smaller quantities more frequently."

"This is why we have more our with little packs of instant," says Daisy Lyn Go-ly, Baruan's assistant vice president for merchandising (food).

Customers also prefer smaller sizes of shampoo, conditioner and detergent. "There is even some 'down trading' in brands food—from Doritos to those generic rice, from ketchup to ketchup, and from beef to pork."

At SM supermarkets, customers can compare different varieties of rice in the retail section, which gives them the option to buy the grain in the quantities they need.

Items that are no longer on the priority list of customers include air and car treatment, deodorant, insecticide, fabric softener and food like pasta.

Other customers prefer buying in bulk or in big packs for certain products, says SM's supermarket chain.

Angst back over $700-B bailout plan

NEW YORK—AFTER A BRIEF SPELL of elation, angst has returned to the world's financial markets.

The initial relief by global markets over the US government's $700-billion bailout plan has given way to concerns the rescue package may cost too much, drive up inflation, swell the already-bloated budget deficit and hurt the oil and energy sectors.

In the crucible of controversy and uncertainty over the bailout plan, investors sold off stocks, dropped the dollar and sent oil prices to their

Bugok na T3, Halagang Php22B?

Makukuba na
talaga 'ko nyan!

With fair trade and the tax-paying public in mind, we issue this urgent appeal to government to safer and re-think its plan to pay PIATCO, the builder of the infamous NAA 3, in a week or two. The Land Bank and DBP have in fact announced that they have needed $400 million as 'bridge loans,' to pay for the terminal. And Fraport, PIATCO's partner-turned-enemy, is reportedly lying in officials from Germany to supposedly get their share of 'just compensation.' What's at stake here? Almost Php22 billion pesos in taxpayer's money!

Courtesy of the RP Government

This pay-off schedule comes at a time when Fraport already agreed to sell all its 61.44% direct (30%) and indirect (31.44%) shares and rights over PIATCO, in favor of Manila Hotel, in the amount of US$ 280 Million.

Thus, if Fraport agreed to sell their share for US$ 208M, 61.44%
Then, the value of NAA 3 to PIATCO is US$ 328M only

Below is a table representation of this horrific deal.

GOVERNMENT FUNDS FOR NAA 3
GRP's Proffered Payment to PIATCO	US$ 62 Million
MAAA-DSP-LSP Approved Loan	US$ 400 Million
Total GRP Funds For NAA 3:	US$ 462 Million

PROJECTED PAYMENT SUMMARY
Total Government Funds	US$ 462 Million
Less: PIATCO's Estimated Worth	US$ 328 Million
Excess Funds:	US$ 136 Million

Who Gets This?

Why preempt the final valuation of the court-appointed appraisers and not give utmost respect to the sense of our judicial system? We are doubly appalled by the proposed terms of compensation for PIATCO because of the following unresolved issues:

- The facility has already shown bulging defects, with some ceilings and walls dangerously showing cracks. For the nth time, another portion of the ceiling collapsed. Why is the MAAA ignoring the recommendations of One Asia and TDSM, the groups who made an independent assessment of the facility, that T3 poses serious Life Safety Risk?
- Are perpetrators of a bad project such as NAA 3 to be given 'compensation?' Or do they deserve - like any misplaced or prejudging attitude like sa bayay?
- And if there should be an out-of-court settlement just to open the facility, is it not the duty of government to observe utmost transparency to remove any public suspicion or possible side-deals, or 'tangpuk'?

Why is government eager to (over) pay a defective and unsafe airport?

We, at the Fair Trade Alliance (FairTrade), therefore, ask the government to withhold any further payments - until a full, just and transparent determination of the real cost of what PIATCO has delivered, minus the necessary cost of repairs and additional upgrading investments has been arrived at. After all, it is not DBP or LandBank but Juan Data Cruz who will ultimately shoulder the full burden of paying for NAA 3.

ditorial allocation of at least P1 billion for travel in the proposed P1.4-billion national budget for 2009.

According to probing the amount of P5.7 billion—up from P5.7 billion in the current budget, representing a 14.8-percent increase—to cover the current expenses of 28 government agencies, according to a budget analysis prepared by the minority bloc at the House of Representatives. A copy of the 11-page document was given to the top news anchors.

The opposition Rep. Raulo Rodriguez of Cagayan de Oro raised the suspicion that the increase in the travel budget was a ploy, according to its, with the 2008 election.

"Whether the administration is aware why there is an increase of P1 billion is a good question which we should be removing our suspicions," Rodriguez told the House members.

"Will the additional amount be spent for the only campaign of administration candidates?" he said.

Bigger gains

The biggest gainers in the proposed increase is the Department of Agriculture, whose P20.2-billion allocation was raised by 1,201.2 percent from the current P1.6-billion.

The second biggest gain is the office of President Manuel A. Roxas, with an increased allocation of P416 million from P108.8 million.

Conversely, Congress had the biggest overall budget—P728.1 million—in the proposed national expenditure program for 2009. The amount represented a 0.3-percent increase from the current P726 million.

The travel allocation is part of the maintenance and other operating expenses (MOOE) of every government agency's budget.

Overall, the total is worth P761.2 billion in the 2009 budget proposal, or a 15.6-percent increase from the current amount.

In its budget analysis, the minority bloc questioned the increase of close to 17 percent in the maintenance and other operating expenses, contending that the Department Budget Co-ordinating Council had pegged next year's inflation rate at only between 4 and 6 percent.

"The MOOE is practically the apex of the government budget that is most sensitive to inflation," the minority bloc said.

Lowers

But if there were gains in the proposed travel allocation, there were also losses.

The Department of Trade and Industry's total budget was cut by 18.5 percent, from P357.6 million to P292.6 million. The Department of Social Welfare and Development also lost 17.2 percent, from P99.4 million to P82.5 million.

The travel budget of the Department of Health likewise dropped from P356 million to P298 million, and that of the Department of Science and Technology from P81.4 million to P67.6 million.

DA disputes COA report

By Norman Bernardino

THE PHILIPPINE COA budget release to the Department of Agriculture in 2007 was for the purpose of supporting the department's budget allocation for that year, the department said in a comment on a Commission on Audit (COA) report on the agency.

The fund release was made under the appropriate appropriation in 2007 was "limited inadequate to meet its capital request by the department," it said in reply to the COA report which is submitted in the House appropriations committee's subcommittee on agriculture.

The P8.3 billion in department funds, much of which went to the department's regional offices, include a P1.3-billion disbursement made by the Department of Budget and Management (DBM) in February 2007, just a few months before the submission.

In its reply, the department disputed the COA findings that the disbursements were not covered by work and financial plans.

The COA observation is apparent that many of the releases were made from without a request from the department, or if it did, had vague work and financial plans that made their monitoring difficult.

Why we are a poor country

WE ARE POOR NOT BECAUSE OF OUR LACK of access to an enlightened and burgeoning population. We are poor for other reasons.

First, due to the inefficiency of our political leaders. Look at the days when our elected leaders were brilliant and capable. Today, in our political arena, there are poor elected leaders who have the money, popularity and political integrity (or lack thereof). They are poor not because of their inefficiency but because of their avarice and influence. An efficient leader is someone who does a good job consistently.

Second, due to graft and corruption. It is believed that the same way to make a nation is to put corrupt leaders in office. Graft and corruption is the problem that continues to hinder us. Many young Filipinos can't afford basic education, health and other social services because of graft and corruption in government. Four million of pesos are lost to overpricing and payroll spending. The job based should be stopped. We wish that all government projects get to be finished on time, with no loss of corruption. Some leaders are accused that we have been caught as one of the most corrupt countries in Asia.

Third, due to government neglect. It is the duty of the government to provide social services. When the Church indicates a certain project (e.g., a housing project), it only means that the Church is trying to fill up something that the government has overlooked. It is not really the duty of the Church to provide for the material needs of man. The role is to provide spiritual needs.

However, the Church cannot just show its eyes and let people suffer. The Church has to take on dual roles. One is to be in the service, the other is the provider of spiritual needs.

Lastly, due to political will and good governance, or rather the lack of these two elements that are key to economic success. Competition should not get in the way of our leaders serving the people, and services should be provided to all citizens. If our country can produce leaders who have political will and who are good governing authorities of good governance, we can achieve what we have been aspiring after.

Money cannot be produced without political will. It is not the time to make some political changes. If we want a country free of corruption, then we have to help each other. If we want to take off economically, we have to get rid of all forms of corruption. If we want to be a third world country, the key is making this dream a reality in our hands.

We pray for our leaders. We pray for our nation. We pray for our economy. But we must act now.

People empowerment vs population control

PEOPLE ARE POWER. IT'S USED TO BE A great power if your population is shrinking," wrote political commentator Robert J. Samuelson in a 2005 Washington Post article titled "The End of Europe." It would follow from this view that our country can make significant strides to progress if government offers no period toward empowering people.

Our officials should give focus that will improve the quality of education and health education more accessible and affordable; generate more jobs; encourage entrepreneurship; and provide the basic needs of food, shelter, medical care and clothing.

Third, that aside from the budget provided for a comprehensive population control program (Family Plan 2015), an additional 10 percent of gender and development budget, also allocated is necessary, but has not been from all government agencies. This alone could make billions of pesos.

Isn't we need this money more for people-empowering policies?

Bush team, Congress haggle over $700-B bailout

budgeting "housewares" may get congressional help in negotiating their mortgage as part of the $700-billion financial bailout legislation being drafted in Congress.

Congressional leaders and the Bush administration are haggling over details of the mortgage rescue plan, including Democratic demands that rescues at falling-market interest rates that receive the government's help, not private lenders—credit that is the large part of money and other compensation they receive in their way out of the debt.

House Speaker Dennis Hastert and Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan, the architect of the bailout, were expected to have fought questions at a congressional hearing on Tuesday when lawmakers of both parties would have to agree on how the rescue would work and how Congress would be affected.

Producers may be able to negotiate about their proposal that the government be able to purchase equity in following companies as part of the plan, as Congress would benefit from their success.

The Bush administration is looking at another key Democratic demand—allowing judges to transfer hearings, sometimes at night, as they could avoid backlogs.

Congressional rules said the House could act on a bill Wednesday or Thursday with the

Senate following soon thereafter. "We have gotten closer," Rep. Thomas Franks of Missouri, chair of the House financial services committee, said last Wednesday. "We're not done yet."

Assailed on both sides

Bill, lawmakers on both the right and left already were assailing the bill's progress.

Rep. Richard Shelby of Alabama, the top Republican on the Senate Banking Committee, blasted the emerging plan as "another wasteful one-compromise."

By his judgment, it would be better to restore market access of taxpayer funds waiting as this time than have been heavily crafted and may actually cause the government to invest in an inadequate amount of aid to borrowers, "Shelby said.

Lawmakers on both sides of the political spectrum assailed the plan as a massive, poorly conceived bailout. Conservative House Republicans and liberal House Democrats both faulted the plan on Monday to express their concerns, and they were drafting their own legislation as alternatives.

Broad power

The emergency legislation would give the government broad power to buy up distressed assets from troubled financial firms. It is a bill to unlock the flow of credit and stabilize badly shaken markets in the United States and around the globe.

In an expression of its original support, the Bush administration is taking for granted power to buy up virtually any kind of bad assets—including credit that is at or near zero—through its financial institutions in the United States or abroad, in order to stabilize markets.

Stimulating financial firms

Frank said he and Shelby had agreed to create a congressional oversight board as part of the bailout and to require that the government come up with a plan to avoid government involvement in any company it expects to be rescued.

A government official with knowledge of the talks confirmed that the administration believed that the administration believed that the government should not be involved in any company it expects to be rescued.

those provisions.

There will be questions as to which, including financial firms would be helped and what kind of assets the government could buy up at or near zero.

Lawmakers in both parties are expected to be continuing to work on the idea that executive compensation limits should be part of the bailout, although Franken said he was concerned that such could discourage companies from going public.

Lawmakers were concerned that how successful the administration's plan would be in reducing credit markets, which many businesses depend on to fund day-to-day operations, and in keeping up the still-walled housing market.

Angst back over $700-B bailout plan

WASHINGTON—STAMPED
Fingers cross—day gone—day over on Sept. 24.

The small amount in the market was a relief, but it was already taken over by equity markets falling back and bonds and the dollar on the debt market as markets for about the previous week.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average fell 102 points, ending on Friday after administration officials and congressional leaders agreed to a bill to unlock the flow of credit and stabilize badly shaken markets in the United States and around the globe.

House Speaker Dennis Hastert and Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan, the architect of the bailout, were expected to have fought questions at a congressional hearing on Tuesday when lawmakers of both parties would have to agree on how the rescue would work and how Congress would be affected.

Producers may be able to negotiate about their proposal that the government be able to purchase equity in following companies as part of the plan, as Congress would benefit from their success.

The Bush administration is looking at another key Democratic demand—allowing judges to transfer hearings, sometimes at night, as they could avoid backlogs.

Congressional rules said the House could act on a bill Wednesday or Thursday with the

Senate following soon thereafter. "We have gotten closer," Rep. Thomas Franks of Missouri, chair of the House financial services committee, said last Wednesday. "We're not done yet."

Population bill advocates turn to Iglesia for support

By Marlon Ramon

HEALTH ADVOCATES PUSHING FOR THE PASSAGE of the controversial reproductive health bill in the House of Representatives are banking on the support of the highly influential Iglesia ni Cristo (INC) to counter the firm opposition of the Catholic bishops.

For years, INC broke its silence but never for advocating its official stand on issues regarding family planning and contraceptives. In a statement, the group said it would support the use of modern family planning methods "as long as they are not abortifacient (a substance which induces abortion) in nature and they do not impose prolonged abstinence from sexual intercourse among married couples."

INC said it opposed the rhetoric centered of family planning, which the Catholic bishops were expressing as "a really victory or success."

Anguiano said another the stand point of the Catholic Church, INC's view on reproductive health was "an enlightened position which did not speak of religious dogma."

"I think that's how our religious leaders should treat the issue. They should be the people's choice," she said.

Media viewpoint

Media observers, Marlon Ramon, said they were surprised that INC's stance was supporting Catholic opposition to the bill.

"INC's stance is a good indication on how they perceive the bill. They really count their members."

After keeping its silence for the years since its first which a religious order endorsing all forms of family planning methods except Iglesia and contraceptives in 2004.

"The issue also affects religion and morality if the mother's life is in danger," she said.

Anguiano, however, claimed that their group did not want to trigger a debate on population control policy among different religious organizations.

"If we consider the discussion on who will go to heaven or hell by supporting the bill, we will never come to a conclusion. We should keep the debate based on facts and not on religious beliefs," she stressed.

King's support

Anguiano, however, underscored the importance of the stand of prominent business leaders on the reproductive health policy.

She said Washington, York, founder of online firm SGT & Co., and United Prime Minister Cesar Mirra, who also leads Real Commercial Banking Corp., were strongly recommending the use of modern birth control methods.

Representative Leon, former president, also expressed his optimism over the possibility that Deputy President Joseph Estrada might formally endorse Legarda's bill.

He also noted that Estrada's former cabinet secretary, including former Health Secretary Albert B. Romulo Jr., had been openly supporting the bill.

He added that Estrada was, like Legarda, had filed his own version of the measure in the Senate.

Cainta asphalt plant ordered closed

Mayor cites 3 violations committed by operator

By Mary C. Corajal

CAINTA MAYOR RAMON "MON" ILAGAN yesterday ordered the closure of an asphalt processing plant operating inside a subdivision after receiving complaints about environmental hazards from residents in the area.

"I ordered the closure of the plant and directed our legal department to study the charges that could be filed against the operator," Ilagan told the Inquirer in a phone interview. He identified the operator as Sino-arc Corporation.

Ilagan previously stated the asphalt processing plant located in Brookside Hills Subdivision, Barangay San Isidro, was owned by police and officials from the municipality's legal, health and juvenile departments.

Upon receiving reports of drums containing unknown substances stacked inside the compound, Ilagan ordered a cleanup of the premises within 48 hours.

"No one seriously would be convinced that the plant was constructed by Governor Telo based in Angeles City in emergency asphalt."

The mayor said their investigation showed that the plant was constructed by Governor Telo based in Angeles City in emergency asphalt.

Earlier, residents in the area complained about the plant's operations, even at night, and of the bad smell emanating from the area.

The mayor stressed that canteen operators could be held liable if it was found out that the students had eaten contaminated food in their establishments.

Bush tries to salvage crumbling nuke talks

NEW YORK—Even as North Korea moves to take back hard-won concessions as its nuclear program, U.S. President George W. Bush's administration is trying to salvage a crumbling international effort to get the communist state to give up its nuclear arms.

While admitting the situation is dire, especially after Pyongyang took yet another step on Monday to return to nuclear testing, officials say the talks are still dead and have survived enabled by the talks and talks before.

Over the next week, U.S. Secretary of State Condoleezza

Rice will meet her counterparts in the organizations—China, Japan, South Korea and Russia—to discuss possible steps ahead despite North Korea's apparent unwillingness to remain a part of the process.

"The six-party process has had to be restructured in the past and we're currently exploring whether we can now," said chief U.S. negotiator Christopher Hill. "Clearly it is a difficult process... and it's a time when we're going to have to work together."

"This is a very rough-sounding situation in the negotiation process," he said following an announcement from the U.S. nuclear watchdog that North Korea had asked it to remove rods and surveillance equipment from its Yongbyon nuclear reactor.

The step follows the secret signing and re-signing of a 1994 nuclear watchdog that North Korea had asked it to remove rods and surveillance equipment from its Yongbyon nuclear reactor.

"They are not ready to sign on... but we are concerned about that," Hill said. AP

"It's an interesting season because the side seems so much for both teams," San Beda coach Jose "Coach" Pineda told the press. "We're in the thick of it."

"We're every hungry team," Jose Rizal coach Arnel Maguila said. "We go wherever the game and we want to make the most out of it."

San Beda went to BHS and last championship in 1972, when the school was still known as San Beda College and the Bombers were led by Philip Dizon.

San Beda, led by Pineda since June, began a 20-year title drought in 2006 by losing Philippine Christian University before coming back to back titles and in 2010 overall as the champions of UAAP Division 1.

Maguila and Pineda began off-season practice on how the series will play out but the BHS coach believes that there is a slight edge because of their championship experience.

"In the past, our advantage is gained by San Beda's championship experience," the Bombers coach said. "They are used to playing at this level."

San Beda reached the finals for the first time in seven years after losing to the Red Lions in the 2007 Final Friday while San Beda used to lose twice to defeat the Bombers in the 2006 and 2007.

The two teams have equally deep rosters with San Beda fielding five-time league MVPs and top scorers like Pineda, Pineda, Pineda, Pineda, Pineda.

PBA will uphold nat'l team duty

By Renee K. Castillo

DEJECTED OR OTHERWISE, THE PHILIPPINE BASKETBALL ASSOCIATION will not renounce its commitment to help form the Philippine national sports team.

This was the promise made by PBA board chair Joseph "Jelly" Aponso yesterday, a day after the league announced it is withdrawing its support for the national coach.

"The league (PBA) made a commitment to assist the coach, to form the team and to compete in the Asian Games (tournament), and we will honor that commitment," Aponso said over the phone, in reaction to AFP executive director John F. Dela Cruz's Monday League executives' Board of Directors' meeting the coach to a press conference on Monday, Sept. 25, in Manila.

That development, strictly said, was not with PBA, also a former PBA representative, who said that the legal battle between PBA and the AFP was "really not a related issue with the PBA."

"It shows inconsistency with the AFP where the PBA is a partner," Aponso said. "We're confident with the case while the AFP appeals."

"I don't know where the feeling of the (AFP) is coming from, but the decision of delaying the meeting doesn't speak well for the AFP," he said.

"I don't want to say 'no' just trying to be provocative' when he decided to postpone meeting the coach, which, according to sources, is up to the league's president-elect, the case of Aponso, (former) Governor Jeng Dela Cruz, 70 years old, and his son, Jeng Dela Cruz.

On Monday the AFP issued a 14-day temporary restraining order (TRO) from the court of appeals, stopping a Manila Regional Trial Court from implementing a ruling that the June 12 election of Manny Pangilinan as chair of the PBA was "null and void."

Aponso said that the AFP continues to argue recognition of the PBA and the world governing body for the sport, FIBA.

How to develop an eye for old Asian furniture

Purita "Pachot" Mapa gives the lowdown on exotic wood

ANTIQUE lamp from China

By Margie C. Enriquez
Contributor

EXOTIC DENOTES SOMETHING that is not of local origin, or something strikingly different. Exotic wooden furniture will always be hot. Its appeal lies in the fact that people want to own something that distinguishes them from others, or they are drawn to the uncanny allure of foreign wood. Aesthetics such as deep color tones, special grain patterns and charming surface textures have upward disseminating connotes in the general mind.

This is the reason for the enduring popularity of traditional Asian furniture. Chinese furniture endures the adoration and the value of a gem.

Purita "Pachot" Mapa of Old Asia has weathered several economic downturns in the 17 years of her business. To this day, her Asian pieces still sell as hotwell and thought-provoking as ever.

In 19th century, for example, a chair was used as a parlor chair, could be turned into a dining chair, a place or a garden armchair. Also, 19th century chairs were used more as a support, rather than as a table, with an addition of glass plates or metal tops.

Old Asia's only retailer was Maqui's friend. Recently, he decided to change, many of People are always buying for function, Maqui says, the antiques are not always. Writing desks and side tables, which can hold up a mirror or serve as buffet table, are also selling fairly.

For doors, big tables, items such as wooden Buddha from Thailand and the Chinese Buddha are always in demand. There are also affordable pieces such as large wooden frames from dark wood woods and lacquer stands.

Maqui has clients who collect a room for Oriental furniture. Maqui replies, "The chair has to be comfortable with two feet, if you want to take a nap, there are no hard and fast rules. We've got to know their preferences to see how their pieces fit in their lifestyle."

TIPS ON HOW TO BUY GOOD STOCK

- Learn more about the woods. Beautiful furniture is appreciated for the grain or the classification of trees to give them the surface appearance.

- Dark is precious, well-maintained and has been very fine grain. Over time, the color gets darker because of the oxidation. Darker colors, the darker gets. Another reason of its dark color is the aging. Darker colors are found in Chinese furniture.
- Learn the classification of the pieces. An antique is passed down usually several generations from the original owner. The original owner is usually a wealthy person.
